About the programme

ProcToGo project – thanks to the Erasmus+ funding – organises a blended programme fully focused on Sustainable Public Procurement. The programme aims to provide participants with hints and a direct engagement on how public procurement can be redesigned through digital tools to achieve sustainability goals.

The programme combines:

- self-paced training on the fundamentals in the areas of digital transformation, sustainability, procurement and supply chain management (accessible on Open edX);
- in-person practice-based lectures on how public tenders can be designed and managed to promote sustainability;
- hybrid group work on a public tender simulation, started in presence together with the lectures and presented remotely to Public Procurement Authorities .

Sustainable Public Procurement in the Digital Age is developed as a training activity within the ProcToGo (Procurement: Digital Tools for Sustainable Goals) project, the strategic partnership co-funded by the European Commission, which involves five partner universities and four associate partners.

The main project objectives are:

- identify the new procurement skills required to effectively leverage the new digital tools to achieve sustainability goals;
- develop digital courses and blended programmes in the area of procurement;
- develop a micro-credential framework to structure a long-term development path.
